Hey Guys!! I thought maybe I'd use a page of the newsletter as a mini diary segment sometimes – if y'all are cool with it!

August felt like it flew by but at the same time it has dragged along – ya know the feeling? Like I keep looking at the calendar. surprised we're not already halfway through September.

I've been having some trouble this month with getting things done. My problem isn't so much a lack of motivation – it's the overwhelming feeling of having so much to do and not knowing how to get started. It's also easy to push things off until tomorrow. Besides that, this last week I got so incredibly sick that I can barely get out of bed or talk. As I rest up I'd like to just remind everyone – stay healthy and stay hydrated. I am taking a couple days off to re-cooperate.

On a positive note, I have so many ideas for videos and I'm excited for October to be coming around the corner because I love me some fall and Halloween!

From the Vault

In high school I had a short lived theatre career as part of a comedy troupe that performed in between acts at the talent show.

It was so fun to be behind-the-scenes and backstage. It was my first real taste of performing.

Media Recommendations

Some podcasts, shows, and movies that I've been watching lately.

The Confused Breakfast Podcast has hosts AJ, Sean, and Mike discuss older classics like The Sandlot, Dazed and Confused, Uncle Buck, and more. They go over reviews, scene by scene breakdowns, and present fun facts and behind-the-scenes info from the set. I'm a few episodes in and I'd thought I'd share it as a recommendation because I love their banter and insights to the film world.

Reservation Dogs is a new show on FX and Hulu about 4 Indigenous teenagers from rural Oklahoma. They are in a beef with some new neighbors that moved in on their turf and they are trying to come up with enough money to make their way to California. Lots of interesting characters in this cast! I'm so happy to see some more diversity in the forefront of the TV/Film world. I watch this show on Hulu so I'm only 4 episodes in but it's a HIGHLY RECOMMEND!

Pet Peeves

People annoy us, sounds annoy us, and sometimes we even annoy ourselves.

These are anonymous pet peeves sent in on Instagram.

- When people don't replace the toilet paper roll
- When people start talking before I'm finished talking
- People chewing loudly – this was a BIG ONE!
- People who lie over trivial things
- The gunk build-up in the sink strainer
- People stealing my pens
- People being late
- Wet sleeves when you wash your hands
- Dirty clothes next to the hamper not IN IT
- People not using turn signals
- Talking during a movie
- People who always have to one up you
- People making rude/mean comments unprovoked– like be nice!
- Someone trying to wave me through a 4-way stop even though it's their turn
- Leaving time on the microwave
- Pee on the toilet seat
- Not putting your cart back at the store
- Lights left on in a room when no one is in it
- People who don't pick up their dog's poop.

An advice column from Alloy's POV.

Topic: First Impressions

Question: I'm meeting my significant others friends for the first time. What's the move?

Alloy's Answer: A lot of people use their friends as a benchmark for their significant others. Their opinions and first impressions of you might have more weight to them than others. If you are meeting their friends for the first time here are some tips! Be engaged and interested- introduce yourself and then ask about their jobs, hobbies, or relationship to your S/O to keep the convo going. Be laid back! This is just another hangout for them-not an interview! Have a drink, play a game, be a good sport about the day's activities. Just be yourself and be open to meeting people. Leave them asking "Hey, when is so-and-so coming back again? They were cool!"

Good luck!

XOXO Alloy

Have a safe and happy weekend! 😊

Surprisingly, all three of these photos were taken in my room when, in reality, Riley is known to exclusively sleep in my parent's room at night. Mostly because he has more room but also because he goes out to pee at 5am.

Rascal sleeps in the most random places but will use my bed as a bathing station apparently.

The top photo only has their attention because I was peacefully eating a breakfast sandwich in bed and these two felt they needed to be there in case I dropped the slightest crumb.
